POSTAL CARD VOTE ON COASTAL LAW

T. H. Petrie, who does not believe in a suspension of the law, and John Emmeluth, who desires that it be recommended that the law be suspended altogether, on Thursday voted against the proposition to take a postal card vote of the members of the Merchants' Association, on the question of the suspension of the coastwise shipping law as affecting Hawaii.

There were about a score at the meeting of the Merchants' Association on that afternoon, at 4 o'clock, and nearly all were in favor of taking a postal card vote of the members of the Association to determine their sentiments in regard to the application of the law which prohibits travel on foreign boats between the American ports of Honolulu and San Francisco.

Those in favor of the postal vote were James Steiner, H. von Lamm, W. T. Lucas, J. M. Riggs, W. H. McInerney, J. H. Hertsche, H. H. Williams, C. S. Crane, E. Berndt, R. J. Buckley, W. Lishman, W. F. Dillingham, J. L. Cockburn, M. A. Gonsalves and T. E. Wall. Fred L. Waldron was in the chair.

Emmeluth agreed with Byron O. Clark had said at the Young Hotel meeting, that the coastwise shipping law ought to be abolished, and the recommendation for suspension should go further and cover not only the desires of those who wished to travel, but also include the matter of freight. McInerney declared that there were now five freighters to one passenger boat and Lishman thought there was no sense in asking for too much at the start. He believed in inserting the edge of the wedge before hitting on it, the idea being to create business for American ships and then have the law put back.

SAILOR LOST OVERBOARD

William McCracken, boatswain of the Alameda, was lost overboard in a mysterious manner during the voyage from San Francisco. No one saw him leave the ship, and the fact of his having dropped into the sea was not discovered until some hours later. It is stated aboard the Alameda that McCracken had not been well of late, the idea of his shipmates being that his troubles and bad health caused him to commit suicide.

The accident occurred about six o'clock yesterday morning when the vessel was only about 150 miles from Honolulu. McCracken had taken his men forward to do some work. After a time the boatswain was missed, and a search revealed the fact that he was not aboard the vessel.

The Alameda had one of the roughest trips down in her history. Not that the gales were the worst ever encountered by the old sea rover, but the storm did not abate to any extent from the Golden Gate to a point a couple of hundred miles from the Islands. An unusually large number of passengers, chiefly tourists from Southern California resorts, were brought over. The vessel also had 307 bags of mail for Honolulu, and 70 bags to be taken by the Canadian boat at this port for Australia.

The Alameda will leave Honolulu at 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning for San Francisco.

Y. M. C. A. WORK AT NEW CAMP

The Honolulu Y. M. C. A. has secured from Central Union church their big picnic tent, which will be used for meetings, entertainments and general Y. M. C. A. purposes at Camp Moanalua during the encampment of the National Guard there, February 18 to 22 inclusive. It is a large affair, capable of seating an immense number of people in a pinch.

Secretary Super intends to run a regular Y. M. C. A. there during the maneuvers. There will be reading matter, writing material and games for the men, and meetings will be held every evening. These latter will be varied in character. Thursday night there will be a lecture, Friday night a musical entertainment, supplied by people from the city; and Saturday night a stereopticon lecture.

Mr. Super will have charge of the routine work of the Y. M. C. A. and Rev. Mr. Simpson will attend to the religious end of it. On Saturday and Sunday Mr. Super will have the assistance of Dr. Hand.

Several people have offered the use of their automobiles for carrying entertainers to Moanalua and back. Those already accepted are the machines of Frank C. Atherton, R. H. Trent and W. G. Hall. These machines will make several trips apiece every evening between the Y. M. C. A. in town and the camp.

The advertising exhibition at the Y. M. C. A. in full blast today. It is open to the public, ladies as well as gentlemen being welcomed at the door. The exhibition opened yesterday and was the object of considerable attention in the afternoon and evening.

Hack 122 was smashed, the horse hurt and an old man, S. Naamann, so hurt that he may die yesterday p. m., through the horse being frightened by a steam roller on King near Nuuanu street.

The horse bolted, crashed into a wagon loaded with road metal, broke the shaft and rushed along King street, leaving the driver, Akima, bruised among the road stones, then knocked down an old man in front of the Executive building.

The latter was taken to the hospital in a hack about 2:45 p. m. Another hack, 230, was surrounded by two steam rollers, a watering-cart and a trolley car twenty minutes later at the corner of King and Bethel streets and, the horse becoming excited, the driver decided not to turn down Bethel to avoid a fate like 122.
